—The Portland Journal of Commerce is advertised for sale.

—The steamer Columbia left San Francisco yesterday morning for this port.

—The Napier left for Portland yesterday, Dixie Thompson towing, Betts pilot.

—"Can a man marry his widow's sister?" is the latest problem in social science.

—Fifteen mills on the dollar is the Marion county tax levy for the ensuing fiscal year.

—Shipping to the amount of 73,000 tons register is now on the way to the Columbia river.

—A beer saloon keeper has the very appropriate name of Phillip A. Gahn. They all do it.

—O. H. Adams and wife of McMinnville, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Parker.

—The Temple Bar finished loading yesterday. She will go to sea as soon as she can ship a crew.

—The Nez Perce News insists that northern Idaho should be annexed to Washington Territory.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McGuire and Mrs. A. C. Wirt left by the Fleetwood for Portland this morning.

—Attention is directed to the advertisement of the West Coast Packing company in another column.

—The Courier-Journal says the mileage account of the congressional delegate from Alaska will paralyze the Treasury.

—Eighteen million feet of lumber were shipped from Puget Sound to California during the month of August, 1881.

—The Independent is making an independent fight to have the county seat of Columbia county, W. T., removed to Pomeroy.

—The cold snap yesterday morning gave splendid amusement to our boys and girls, they being out in pretty large numbers coasting.

—The Duxford and Argo arrived down from Portland yesterday, Clara Parker and Ordway towing, Johnson and Congdon pilots.

—A union and national salute was fired from Fort Stevens and Canby last Wednesday, orders having been received from headquarters to that effect.

—County Treasurer Heilborn gives notice in another column that there is now money in the treasury to pay all orders presented prior to the 1st of last April.

—Mr. Franklin has handed us a brass front door key, which he found on Court street yesterday morning, and which now awaits an owner at this office.

—That's a singular fashion they have in Geneva, Switzerland, where ministers are elected to the pulpit, in just the same way that state officials are to office.

—H. Thielson, the chief engineer of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, has been appointed chief engineer of construction of the western division of the Northern Pacific railroad.

—A Dallas, Texas, paper says that a society has been established in that town "for the prevention of cruelty to animals with upward of $100 in the bank." If animals with bank accounts only are to be benefited, the society can afford no relief to newspaper men.

Council Proceedings.

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held Thursday at 2 p. m., with Mayor D. C. Ireland presiding. Members present—Baker, Spexarth, Taylor and Wright. Absent—Hahn and Headington. In attendance, F. C. Norris, Auditor and Clerk. An ordinance entitled an ordinance transferring to the general fund $750 from the special fund, and $1,000 from the police fund, was passed. An ordinance entitled an ordinance to prevent animals affected with any contagious disease from being at large, was passed. An ordinance entitled an ordinance making an appropriation out of the general fund to pay contractors for repairs to crossings on Squemoqua street and in front of the City Hall, was passed. The bills of Gill & Clinton for $123 and $73 for repairing Olney and Hamilton street crossings, with Squemoqua street, were ordered paid by warrants. On motion of Councilman Wright the Council adjourned.

—The Fabbri English Opera troupe are on the up steamer Columbia.

—The Fleetwood brought down from Portland the crew for the City of York.

—The mileage bill of the Washington Territory legislature aggregates $2,264.24.

—The crew of the State of California gave a ball at Turn-Halle in Portland last night.

—The Mechanics Fair at Portland was to have been formally opened at six o'clock yesterday evening.

—Prof. A. L. Francis is back from Victoria, fifteen pounds heavier and as jovial as ever. He will remain with us about a week.

—Capt. Gries and wife of the City of York, Mrs. N. Loeb, N. Kimball and Mr. S. Danziger arrived from Portland by the Fleetwood yesterday.

—Mr. E. C. Crow of Knappa, hurt himself quite severely last Monday while engaged in chopping. J. N. Coffey, of the same place, came down last evening with his foot half chopped off, the same being the result of an axe slipping. Both are at the Parker House under the attendance of Dr. Jennings.

—Some of the up-country papers are relating stories of large turnips being "laid" on their tables. One is mentioned as actually weighing twenty-one pounds. Turnips have been raised this season within sixteen miles of Astoria that weighed from thirty-one to thirty-seven and one half pounds each.

—Charters & Morton, of the Astoria Shooting gallery, offer a standing prize of $250 to any person making three bulls eyes in succession. Also a prize of $500 to any person making the highest score in six shots during the balance of the week.

—Dr. Gunther says there are 7,000 species of fish now known to men of science. When a man sits on the river banks half a day watching a cork idly floating on the stream, and comes home with a sun-burned nose and not a single specimen of these 7,000 species, he is inclined to think that Dr. Gunther is a patent medicine advertisement.

—Lieut. F. Schwatka has been appointed aid-de-camp on the staff of General Miles, commanding this department, by permission of the war department. This, says the Standard, will be gratifying to the numerous friends of Lieut. Schwatka, as it will be the means of keeping among us one who has done so much to bring credit on himself, his native state and the American nation.

—The preliminary trial of D. C. Courtney for the killing of Matt Shannon took place, says the Jacksonville Sentinel, before Justice Butler on the 4th inst., and defendant was bound over on a charge of manslaughter, with bonds fixed at $2,000. He was also held to answer in the sum of $200 bonds on a charge of stealing cattle from George Black, and being unable to furnish the necessary bonds still languishes in jail.

—A fair audience greeted the Kentucky Jubilee Singers at Liberty Hall last night, and the old-fashioned ballads so sweetly sung by Miss Webb, were a treat to hear. To-night there will be an entire change of programme and if you want to see and hear a first-class minstrel entertainment, be on hand.

The Accursed Mongolian.

One of the great factors in promoting the growth of the country has been immigration. But immigration up to the breaking out of the civil war gave the South the go-by. Free labor will never enter in competition with slave labor, because it is too heavily weighted down for the encounter. To insure success it would have to be content with wages equal to or less than the expense of maintaining the slave. All the immigration of a long period settled down in the North and West. It gave to the North the preponderance which told in the conflict for the preservation of the Union. In California, by the influx of the Chinese, we have been reduced to somewhat the same condition as the South. Immigration does not pour in upon us because the immigrant knows that in a large sense he will have to come in competition with the semi-servile labor of the Asiatic.

If the Mongolian curse had not fallen upon the population of the State would, no doubt, to-day be much larger than it is. States which only produce a single staple have gone ahead of us partly for the reason stated.—S. F. Bulletin.

The Australian government has passed a law prohibiting further Chinese immigration to any Australian port. From all civilized lands is heard the same cry: "The Chinese must go," and, for the same universal reason. The beardless race which for three thousand years has practiced economy until they have ceased to long for even the reasonable comforts of life, and which through all these years have been forced to work perpetually to keep from starving, until now to toil in their normal condition, are at last prepared by a hundred generations of misery to live on so little food and to breathe so little air that for a white man to compete with them is impossible. The white man cannot work after he has ceased to hope. If poor, he is comforted through the week by the thought that when Sunday comes he will have a day with his loved ones, and that it will be crowned by a generous feast. If ever so poor there is, down in his heart, a belief that some time he will have enough to buy a little home, which will be all his own, where there will be a garden, and a climbing vine above the roof. And when he sees a race appear that have no Sabbath, that have no hope, no dream of anything in the future but toil, and yet can work because not one generous hope has ever warmed their hearts, he recoils and cries out that such a race must go.

A thrift that reduces a man's living until they want but a moiety of air, an economy which dries up the secretion until but a moiety of food is required, and an industry which drives a man on to labor without air and without food make conditions with which the native born American cannot meet and compete. And when there is found added to these characteristics a brain vacant of all thoughts which lift up and ennoble humanity, yet subtle beyond description in the bearing which a transaction is to have upon a final profit or loss, and which at the same time is not controlled by any moral sentiment, the dullest mind can estimate how formidable is the danger presented to all generous races by these miserable creatures. And then they are non-combatants. They meet derision with a smile and persecution with a patience which baffles courage everywhere. Lastly, as compared with all other nations, they are, in number, as the leaves of the forest. If through their vast native land the death angel should pass and touch with his seal the lips of the first born, as of old in Egypt, if on the morrow's dawn it should be found that there are as many dead as all the inhabitants of our republic number, the loss would scarcely make a ripple there. By the end of the week every tear would be dried, the awful gap would be closed, and the same terrible front of hungry millions would be presented, ready with insidious step to resume the locust raid upon any land which offered food or presented a possibility for toil. No wonder that throughout the earth brave men grow afraid as they contemplate the spectacle; no wonder that generous hearts cry out against such hopeless competition.
